TRADE-OFF

08 / 10

You just finished your shift as a CNA. You need to tell the nurse on the next shift that one patient refused medication. You can use two communication tools:

- (A) A quick 2-line note in the patient chart. Pros: fast, written record, next nurse reads it.
- (B) A verbal handoff in person AND a note. Pros: chance to answer questions, more thorough.

Pros of picking A:

Pros of picking B:

My choice (A or B):

Quality list (pick ONE from today's written-communication tips or add your own): clear / concise / on-topic / reader-focused / proofread

Which quality matters MOST in THIS handoff, and why?
