

Interview Readiness and Question Practice

NAME _____

DATE _____

PERIOD _____

Before the Interview

- research the verified employer/role;
- review posting, resume, cover letter, and examples;
- prepare concise truthful stories and questions;
- confirm time, place/link, format, accessibility, and task/safety expectations;
- plan to arrive/sign in about 10-15 minutes early;
- choose context-appropriate clean, functional, safe clothing;
- test virtual audio/video/background/privacy and a backup route.

Three checks most relevant to Jordan's fictional interview:

Answer Framework

Use Situation/Task - Action - Result/Reflection for experience questions. A result may be what improved, what was completed, or what you learned. Do not invent a number or outcome.

Jordan evidence bank: six-week supply checkout; 120 spreadsheet entries checked; labels revised after confusion; supervised family-event greeting; clarifying questions; no paid work claimed.

Model outline for “Tell me about a time you solved a problem”:

One honest limit/growth statement:

Questions 1-2

1. Tell me about yourself and why this role interests you.

2. What is one strength relevant to this job? Give evidence.

Questions 3-4

3. Tell me about a time you solved a problem or corrected a mistake.

4. Describe a time you worked with another person or served an audience.

Questions 5-6

5. What is one area you are developing, and what action are you taking?

6. How would you handle unclear instructions or private information?

Questions 7-8

7. Why should this fictional employer consider Jordan?

8. What question should Jordan ask the interviewer?

Interviewer Role

The interviewer listens, asks one question at a time, allows thinking time, takes evidence notes, asks a relevant follow-up, and avoids protected/private questions about family, health, religion, disability, immigration, age, or other personal topics unrelated to the simulation.

One useful follow-up for an incomplete answer:

One neutral evidence note:

One question the interviewer must not ask and why:
